«The sense of ease when everything is arranged; waiting and perfect. You're greeted by your name, the way to the seminar room is signposted, the room has been aired, the drinks are cold, the coffee hot and the croissants fresh. That's how it has to be. And yes, that's what you can expect from us. It's the right cable for the beamer, the markers are at the flip chart, the internet connection works first time and is fast as lightning.»

Where your events are concerned we admit we can be a little picky; because it isn't just the disasters in meetings, seminars and parties that annoy, but also the little errors, especially as the unprofessionalism reflects on you as the organiser. That's one of the main reasons why we at Sorell Hotels do everything to make sure your event is simply perfect. From A to Z, from the quote to the welcome speech to the applause at the end.»

«So how was the food? Whether holidays in Cape Town or a weekend in Ticino, returning travellers always talk about the food. Usually without prompting, as the first or second thing. Food is important when you eat out. Food can sometimes also determine how you perceive the context.»

The food is not just a garnish for parties and events, but a central component of the atmosphere and the comfort. Think how relaxed a meeting can begin with a latte macchiato on the table and a basket of fresh baked croissants filling the room with their wonderful smell. And by 11:30 – let's be honest – half the participants have long ago stopped thinking about strategic positioning and are emotionally already at their steak or fish file. Consider how interesting it could be if, instead of the usual suspects at the closing Aperitif, eye-openingly different snacks and surprises were waiting and the white wine had the perfect temperature? Our food competence often becomes a topic of the conversation. Indeed, in the Sorell Hotels, food is anything other than just a side dish.»

Food competence

Professionalism

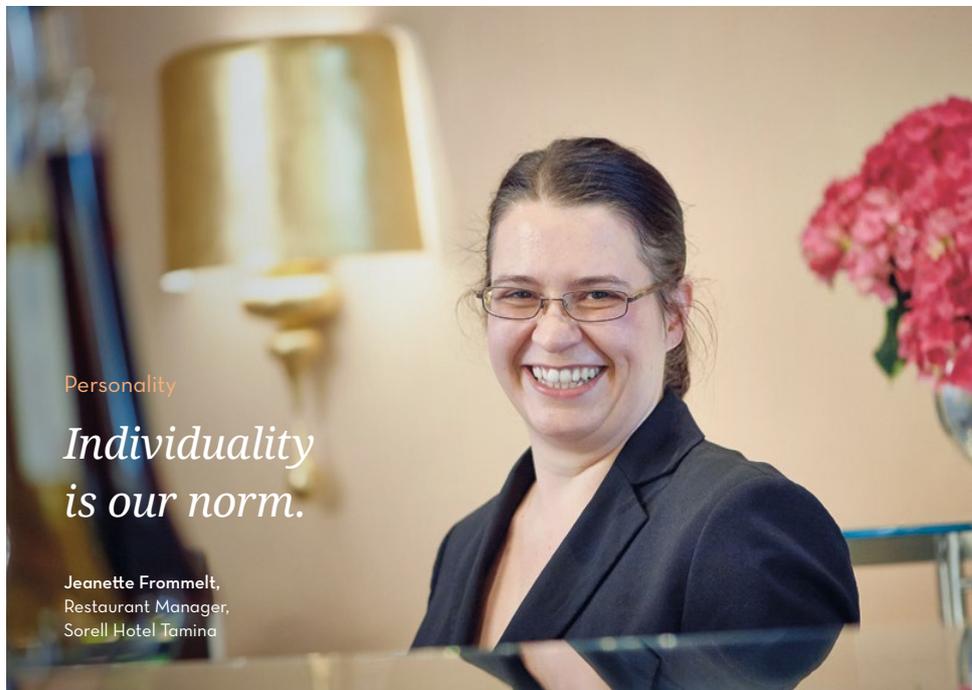

There are no options when it comes to perfection.

«Who wants to be like all the others? No, you want to be different: you want to make a statement with your meeting, or to change the structure of the seminar for once. You want the special catering after the presentation to earn you some applause or praise from the boss. The summary «Just like always» is not a compliment. No one wants to hear that. Including us.

We want to inspire you with new ideas, show you alternatives to make your event with us a total success. How do we do it? Even we at Sorell Hotels can't work magic, but we have the know-how of many years and hundreds of events behind us. And at the end it will look as though maybe we did have a few tricks up our sleeve.»

Personality

Individuality is our norm.

Jeanette Frommelt,
Restaurant Manager,
Sorell Hotel Tamina

No event is like another – that's why every celebration in a Sorell Hotel receives an individual, personal touch, and each business event gets professional, tailored attention. Whether meeting, congress or seminar, round birthday, banquet or wedding, Sorell Hotel's MICE professionals don't just have the infrastructure, service and catering under control, but on request can also present implementation ideas and support programs. From the simple to the complex, from the pragmatic to the visionary.
